

About Blunder Mifflin

Our History

Founded in 1785 by the visionary Michael Blunder, Blunder Mifflin started in Cranston, a town famous for... well, not much. Built on principles like quality, reliability, and a stubborn refusal to modernize, we've grown from a tiny local supplier to a name recognized by at least a few people nationwide.

Our Mission

At Blunder Mifflin, we aim to empower businesses with top-notch office supplies and customer service that makes you wonder if we're serious. We know the right tools are crucial for productivity, so we offer a vast array of office supplies to meet every conceivable need, and then some.

Our Products

Blunder Mifflin's product range is extensive, almost overwhelmingly so:

- Stationery - Pens, pencils, notebooks - basically everything you needed in elementary school.
- Office Equipment - Printers, scanners, and shredders for when you want to destroy evidence.
- Furniture - Ergonomic chairs and desks, because comfort is key when avoiding work.
- Breakroom Supplies - Coffee makers and snacks to keep you fueled and slightly less cranky.
- Cleaning Supplies - Disinfectants and trash bags, because cleanliness is next to impossible.
- Technology - Computers and networking gear to keep you connected and endlessly frustrated.

Our Team

- Regional Manager - The fearless leader whose motivational speeches are as frequent as they are unnecessary. Leadership through chaos is the mantra.
- Assistant (to the) Regional Manager - A beet-loving enforcer with martial arts skills, always on high alert for office security threats that never materialize.
- Sales Representative - Master of closing deals and orchestrating pranks. Balances charm with just enough mischief to keep things interesting.
- Receptionist - The artistic soul of the office, greeting visitors with a smile and dreaming of a more creative future.
- Accounts Department - The no-nonsense team ensuring our finances are precise. They run a tight ship and occasionally crack a smile for pets and snacks.
- Warehouse Department - The muscle of Blunder Mifflin, moving products efficiently while keeping the office staff humble.
